

ALL WILL WELCOME MRS. TIM.

Congressman Campbell's Friends on Remors of His Coming Wedding.

The Announcement Causes a Sensation in East-Side Social Circles.

What do you think about Tim Campbell getting married?

This is the question which each of the Congressman's constituents, feminine and masculine, is propounding to-day whenever two or more of them chance to meet.

The rumor of an impending wedding is the most exciting that has obtained currency in Sixth District since election, and engenders the attention of matrons and spinsters, benighted bachelors, politicians and personal friends—all who know and love the statesman in question.

It has been Tim's proudest boast that every woman in his district is "with him to a man," and he has recently been heard humming the popular melody:

"Those of his constituents who are aware of his susceptibility to feminine charms and blandishments are inclined to believe that he has at last fallen a victim, but there are others who refuse to credit it."

Here are a few of the opinions of politicians and others regarding the matter:

Chief Clerk W. J. McKenna, of the District Attorney's office, Tammany Hall leader in the Sixth district, says:

"It's time he was married. I think though that Tim is too old a bird to be caught with chaff."

County Clerk George H. I'm glad to hear it. If Tim is successful in this venture it will be the first combination he ever made without benefit to himself.

Commissioner of Accounts Maurice F. Holahan—Tim's too young to marry.

The poet George, one of Campbell's supporters, opponent in the Sixth District, should be true, there is not a maiden under forty in the Thirtieth Ward but will grieve to think that Tim would seek for a partner of his joys and sorrows outside the East side precinct where he has been living.

Ex-Senator James J. Conboy, Democracy here in the Fifth, says:—Tim about to get into his matrimonial snare?—Well, he's a little too late in the game.

Deputy Controller Richard A. Storrs—Ha, ha, ha.

Deputy City Chamberlain John H. Campbell will settle forever the contest for Congressman's hand and heart which has been going on for years and years without the woman in question.

Comptroller Theodore W. Myers—I hope the chief is successful in this venture it will be the first combination he ever made without benefit to himself.

Assistant District Attorney Temple—Tim ought to have married long ago.

Assistant District Attorney Davis—I think Tim will show remarkable wisdom in getting married.

Judge Cowing, of the General Sessions—I think Tim is coming to the right place. He is a little late in the game.

Deputy Assistant District Attorney Weeks—Tim is doing well, he should do better late than never.

Chief Clerk of the General Sessions—Lizzie is not too late in the game.

Deputy Clerk of the General Sessions—Lizzie is not too late in the game.

Deputy Clerk of the General Sessions—Lizzie is not too late in the game.

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Tipsters' Opinions as to the Various Winners To-Day.

Programme of the Several Events to Be Run Off.

The card offered by the Hudson County Jockey Club for to-day is the lightest of the season, but the horses entered are of a high class, so evenly matched for the several events that the contests ought to prove very interesting.

The first race is at six and a half furlongs. The sport starts with a five-furlong dash. Spalding looks to have the best of the weights and he should duplicate his victory of a few days ago. Red Elm, with a good strong boy up, may get the place. Jock Atwood ought to beat the others.

The second race is at six and a half furlongs. Ballston has all the best of the weights and should win handily. Fernwood ought to be the runner up and Hilda may beat the others.

The third race is a three-quarter of a mile dash. It looks like a good thing for Lizzie who ought to win handily. Sir George may be the runner up and Hilda may beat the others.

The fourth race is also at six furlongs. Kenwood's race at this distance in 1.15 a few days ago was so meritorious that it cannot be overlooked. He ought to win. Tipstaff may be the runner up and Ben Harrison's good performance yesterday should enable him to beat the others.

The fifth race is at a mile and a quarter looks like a good thing for St. Paul. He ought to win handily. Gendarme, I believe, may be the runner up and Hilda may beat the others.

The last race is an usual seven-furlong dash. Lizzie looks like a sure winner. Sir George may be the runner up and Hilda may beat the others.

BULLETS INSTEAD OF DRINK.

Fusillade of Pistol-Shots at Kings County Wheelmen's Club-House.

Bloodless Midnight Battle Between Janitor Johnson and a Tipsy Stranger.

Residents in the fashionable part of Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, were aroused from slumber at 1.15 o'clock this morning by a fusillade of pistol shots, which came from the vicinity of the clubhouse of the Kings County Wheelmen, 325 Bedford avenue.

Going to their windows they saw two men, one standing on the sidewalk, the other in a second-story window, blazing away at each other with revolvers. The man in the window was firing the most shots.

Houndsman Knip and Policeman Yost came running up and placed both men under arrest. The man in the window gave his name as Alfred Johnson and claimed to reside at 455 Bedford avenue. He is a colored man and janitor of the clubhouse.

The other man proved to be Charles Augustus, aged twenty-five, a private watchman who was employed by a number of wealthy residents of St. Mark's avenue. He was slightly under the influence of liquor.

Johnson said that at about 1 o'clock he heard a tapping at the door, and upon going to the door he was surprised to find Augustus trying to enter the club-house. He ordered the man to go away.

Augustus continued to pound and kick the door, and Johnson went to the second-story window and again called out to him to go away.

Augustus, Johnson alleged, made no reply, but pulled out his revolver and fired a shot. Johnson then drew his revolver and returned the fire. He then followed it up by firing several more shots.

Augustus said that he was going through Bedford avenue when his attention was attracted by the brilliantly lighted windows of what he thought was a saloon. He only wanted to get a drink, he said, and when he saw him he would have gone away.

He was looked up in the twelfth precinct station house, where a charge of assault in the first degree, Johnson being held as a witness.

CAUGHT A DIAMOND THIEF.

Identified by the Boston Jeweller Whom He Robbed of $6,500.

His Name Is William Carroll and He Is Held for the Boston Police.

A thief who is very much wanted by the Boston police is in Acting Superintendent Byrne's custody at Police Headquarters to-day. He was bagged Tuesday night by Detective O'Connor and Shawson, of Chief Byrne's staff.

The prisoner, whose name is William Carroll, but he has also been known by the names of Keating and Greyhound.

On the afternoon of Dec. 30 a man entered the jewelry store of William C. Morse, at 208 Tremont street, Boston.

He said he wanted to buy a diamond ring, and Mr. Morse set a large tray containing fifteen diamond solitaire rings and twenty-four scarifics on the top of the showcase. The man looked at them for a while and suddenly expressed a liking for a large diamond pin at the end of the case.

The proprietor then led him to the pin case, and while in that position his customer grabbed the rich tray on the counter and made for the street, where he jumped into a sleigh that was waiting at the door. The whip came down on the horse and he started away at a racing pace.

Mr. Morse and his clerk, when they recovered from their surprise, started in pursuit; but the sleigh turned down a side street and was lost to view.

The Boston police sent an alarm to neighboring cities, including New York.

Detectives O'Connor and Shawson were put on the case, and a desperate criminal was traced to the corner of First avenue.

He was arrested by a wad of paper, and apparently exchanging words of contempt and hatred in their own tongue. One was about forty-five years old, while the other seemed a few years younger.

Suddenly the younger man pulled from his pocket a small black bottle containing a liquid and hurled it at the other's face.

The older man gave a piercing shriek, covered his face with his hands, and staggering forward fell on the ground uttering the most agonized cries.

Vitriol had been thrown in his face, and he was suffering terribly.

His assailant, turning back as he ran to cast one lingering look of hatred upon the sufferer.

A man was carried in an ambulance to Bellevue Hospital, where he was found to be dangerously injured.

His name was found to be Louis Matrangola, an Italian street-sweeper, who lives at 417 East Twelfth street.

His assailant he said was his son-in-law, Alphonse, who lives at 417 East Twelfth street.

His assailant he said was his son-in-law, Alphonse, who lives at 417 East Twelfth street.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.

HE THREW VITRIOL.

An Italian Wreaks Cruel Vengeance on His Father-in-Law.

A cruel deed thrilled the passers-by in East Twelfth street, between Avenue A and First avenue, this morning.

At about 2.15 o'clock two typical Italians were seen walking together on the south side of Twelfth street, about two hundred feet from the corner of First avenue.

They were dressed in the most ordinary and apparently exchanging words of contempt and hatred in their own tongue. One was about forty-five years old, while the other seemed a few years younger.

Suddenly the younger man pulled from his pocket a small black bottle containing a liquid and hurled it at the other's face.

The older man gave a piercing shriek, covered his face with his hands, and staggering forward fell on the ground uttering the most agonized cries.

Vitriol had been thrown in his face, and he was suffering terribly.

His assailant, turning back as he ran to cast one lingering look of hatred upon the sufferer.

A man was carried in an ambulance to Bellevue Hospital, where he was found to be dangerously injured.

His name was found to be Louis Matrangola, an Italian street-sweeper, who lives at 417 East Twelfth street.

His assailant he said was his son-in-law, Alphonse, who lives at 417 East Twelfth street.

His assailant he said was his son-in-law, Alphonse, who lives at 417 East Twelfth street.

GLEASON'S AXE WASN'T IN IT.

Long Island City's Mayor Batted by the Long Island Road.

Tracks Laid by Night on Vernon Avenue Under Police Protection.

The Vernon avenue crossing of the Long Island Railroad at Hunter's Point, Long Island City, was thronged with curious citizens this morning, who expected to find the railroad tracks which they had laid across the avenue, longed to see a pitched battle between the railroad people and fighting Mayor Patrick Gleason and his satellites.

A gang of laborers, under several of the railroad officials, was busy engaged in putting the finishing touches to the additional tracks which they had laid across the avenue, longed to see a pitched battle between the railroad people and fighting Mayor Patrick Gleason and his satellites.

A gang of laborers, under several of the railroad officials, was busy engaged in putting the finishing touches to the additional tracks which they had laid across the avenue, longed to see a pitched battle between the railroad people and fighting Mayor Patrick Gleason and his satellites.

HOGAN MAY YET BE ALIVE.

The AirShip's Inventor Thinks the Aeronaut Was Not Lost.

His Ascent from Brooklyn a Year and a Half Ago.

A despatch from Chicago this morning indicates that it is possible that Prof. Edward D. Hogan, the aeronaut, who sailed from this city in Peter Carmont Campbell's airship a year and a half ago and was supposed to have been lost off Sandy Hook, is yet alive.

According to this despatch (Campbell, who is now in Chicago, says he met several of Hogan's relatives in Detroit who were not at all grieved at Hogan's loss. He believed they knew that Hogan was alive, though keeping his whereabouts from all but his wife.

Mrs. Hogan lives in Jackson, Mich. Hogan left her property amounting to nearly $30,000, some of which is in litigation. According to Campbell, Hogan's relatives in Detroit said they believed he was alive living quietly in a foreign country.

The airship in which Hogan made his supposed fatal ascent was the invention of Peter Carmont Campbell, of Brooklyn. It was 50 feet long, 22 feet in height and carried about eighteen thousand cubic feet of gas. A peculiar car, with a series of screws for propelling the "ship," was suspended from the balloon. The car weighed about eight hundred pounds.

Hogan was engaged by the inventor to make the ascent for the purpose of demonstrating the practicability of his invention, which had been previously tested with more or less success.

The ascent was made at 11 A. M., July 15, 1889, from the Nassau street Company's yard, corner of Kent avenue and Clymer street, Williamsburg.

There was a large crowd gathered to witness the event. Hogan was an experienced aeronaut and had made all his preparations with great care.

After the gas-bag was filled, and he had everything ready, the ropes were cast off and the airship rose in the air.

Hogan raised and lowered his vessel, sailed some distance in the teeth of the wind and then descended and landed safely at the foot of the Brooklyn Bridge.

For a few minutes after that Hogan could be seen climbing like a monkey in and out through the rigging. He appeared cool and collected.

It was expected that he would pull the valve and return to earth at once, but instead he seemed to make some repairs, threw overboard some of his apparatus, and then descended in the direction of Flatbush.

After the airship was floating aimlessly in the air, the sport of the winds, and as he disappeared in the darkness what seemed to be a small fire was seen falling at the end of the ropes underneath him.

It was subsequently reported that a passing vessel had seen the airship slowly descending to the ocean about twelve miles off Sandy Hook.

INDIANS RISE IN IDAHO.

They Are Reported to Be Burning the Town of Pocatello.

Gen. Brooke Loses a Lieutenant in a Sharp Skirmish.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—A despatch received at Army Headquarters from Gen. Miles, at Pine Ridge, conveyed Gen. Brooke's report that Lieut. Casey, of the Twenty-third Infantry, was shot in the head and instantly killed yesterday, by a Brule Sioux, during a sharp skirmish.

No details of the fight are yet received.

Advice from Pocatello, Idaho, bringing news of war dancing among the Indians as a Port Hall Reservation, have been followed by a despatch stating that the remains are burning the town.

Aid has been asked from the State militia and from the regular cavalry posted at Boise barracks.

Of the Indians on the reserve, who number 1,200 or 1,300, most of the Brule are from the tribe that caused the long war of twelve years ago.

Besides Pocatello the towns of Blackfoot and Eagle Rock are on the border of the Port Hall reserve.

Five Indian Agency, S. Dak., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Nichols, formerly superintendent of the Indian School at this Agency, has received the permission of Gen. Miles to take Little Wound to Chicago. The lady hopes to have this warrior, who is now among the hostiles and was one of the earliest disaffected, tell the story of the wrongs of his people.

She returned only a few days ago from Washington and bore a letter from the President to Gen. Miles, on the strength of which the request was granted. The lady also bore recommendations from Dr. McPherson and Dr. Gussman, of Chicago.

Medical Inspector Backus reports twenty-five wounded Indians and fifteen soldiers in the hospital here.

SPRING VIEW, Neb., Jan. 8.—Chief Yellow Horse, formerly lieutenant of the Indian police at Rosebud Agency, passed through here yesterday with a considerable following. Whether it was not aimed to meet the warring element of his tribe, he replied:

"No, we are all hostiles now."

Yellow Horse was supposed to be friendly. Swift Bear and his band, formerly of the same Agency, also declared for war. Both chiefs are supposed to be bearing for the hostile camp, near Pine Ridge Agency.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 8.—Advice from Nebraska towns indicate a more quiet feeling since the arrival of the State militia. Some settlers returned to their farms during the day, though those in isolated districts still remain in towns. Bodies of troops patrol the country round about.

INCIDENTS OF SOCIETY.

The Assembly Ball at Madison Square Garden—Other Events.

Season and scene unchanged remain.

but balls continue. It was only last winter that there was a serious idea of abandoning the assemblies altogether, as they had seemed to become rather dull affairs. Now it is confidently expected that the ball of this evening will be the most delightful and exclusive social event of the season and the season's social event.

Mr. Augustus Johnson, of No. 12 East Fifty-sixth street, entertained twenty ladies at luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Brooks and Mrs. Clark will give a party of reception on Friday evening at the Madison Square Garden.

Mr. George L. Hives, of No. 14 West Fifty-sixth street, will give a party of reception on Friday evening at the Madison Square Garden.

Mr. Henry Parish has many cards out for the evening.

Mr. William C. Schermerhorn, No. 49 West Twenty-third street, will give a dinner this evening.

Mr. E. J. Ludlow will give two receptions at his residence, No. 137 Madison street, on Friday and Saturday afternoon.

At the eighth annual dinner of the Society of the Friends of the Republic, which took place at the Hotel Madison on Saturday evening, Jan. 24, there will be a number of guests.

The Vice-President of the Society, Mr. Robert C. Hoar, will give a party of reception on Friday evening at the Madison Square Garden.

Mr. William C. Schermerhorn, No. 49 West Twenty-third street, will give a dinner this evening.

Mr. E. J. Ludlow will give two receptions at his residence, No. 137 Madison street, on Friday and Saturday afternoon.

CONFERRED BY EMPTY STOMACHS.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Jan. 7.—Twenty-seven of the worst prisoners in the county jail, who had revolted and refused to enter their cells, have been started into submission.

At noon twelve submitted and at 5 o'clock the other fifteen, hungry and cold, gave in.

The prisoners, who were held in the jail, were started into submission at noon twelve submitted and at 5 o'clock the other fifteen, hungry and cold, gave in.

The prisoners, who were held in the jail, were started into submission at noon twelve submitted and at 5 o'clock the other fifteen, hungry and cold, gave in.

The prisoners, who were held in the jail, were started into submission at noon twelve submitted and at 5 o'clock the other fifteen, hungry and cold, gave in.

THE MINNESOTA DEADLOCK.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 7.—The deadlock in the Minnesota Legislature, which has been in existence since the election of the new body, was broken this afternoon, resulting in 40 votes each for the Republican and Democratic candidates and 33 for the Alliance nominees.

Yesterday in Washington.

Yesterday in Washington, the House of Representatives passed a bill for the relief of the late Senator John Sherman, which was introduced by Senator Sherman's son, Mr. John Sherman.

The bill provides for the relief of the late Senator John Sherman, who died in 1875, and for the relief of his family.

The bill was passed by a vote of 40 to 33.

BULKELEY HOLDS OVER.

The Connecticut Legislature Is in a Dead-End.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 7.—The first day's session of the Legislature of the State of Connecticut, which opened yesterday, resulted in a deadlock.

The Democratic candidate, Judge Luzzon B. Morris, being declared elected by the Senate, while the House took a recess until to-morrow without declaring any candidate elected.

To the unprejudiced mind it would appear that the Democratic candidate was the victor in the fight, although the entire work of the Democratic Senate will be overturned by the House to-morrow.

The Democratic workers included Chairman Clinton B. Davis, of the State Central Committee; ex-Judge Henry Stoddard and ex-State Attorney Wm. Hamersley, the two being being elected to the Senate.

They occupied an ante-room and were consulted before each move during the day, and when the session of the Senate ran into the evening they were in the Senate Chamber managing affairs.

William E. Case is the head counsel of the Republicans.

After organization by the election of D. M. Head, Democrat, as President the ball was set in motion in the Senate by the appointment of a committee to obtain the returns from the counties.

The committee failed to secure the papers, they having been sent to the House and held there. Resolutions were passed ordering the House Democratic interpretation of the Constitution, and for hours the Senate rested on their oars.

The House, on the other hand, was busy with the adoption of rules, the Democrats keeping a sharp lookout for breakers. Each side was determined to win.

Every one of the 250 members was in his seat. Mr. Wallcut appeared for the acceptance of the returns of the election of Judge Morris to the Senate.

The House, on the other hand, was busy with the adoption of rules, the Democrats keeping a sharp lookout for breakers. Each side was determined to win.

DEATHS FROM FREEZING IN PARLOR.

European Ports Blocked by Ice.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The weather continues intensely cold throughout the Continent.

Three unfortunate men have been found frozen to death in the streets of Paris; and three others, who were in the Department of the North, perished from cold.

From Hamburg comes news that the Lower Elbe is frozen over solid.

Fleets of vessels are detained. Some provisioned for short voyages are frozen in and their crews are suffering for want of food.

At the mouth of the river over twenty ships, unable to enter, are driven helpless under a strong northeast wind among the heavy floating ice. Great loss of life and property is feared.

At the North German ports are blocked with ice and navigation is suspended.

DEATHS FROM FREEZING IN PARLOR.

European Ports Blocked by Ice.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The weather continues intensely cold throughout the Continent.

Three unfortunate men have been found frozen to death in the streets of Paris; and three others, who were in the Department of the North, perished from cold.

From Hamburg comes news that the Lower Elbe is frozen over solid.

Fleets of vessels are detained. Some provisioned for short voyages are frozen in and their crews are suffering for want of food.

At the mouth of the river over twenty ships, unable to enter, are driven helpless under a strong northeast wind among the heavy floating ice. Great loss of life and property is feared.

At the North German ports are blocked with ice and navigation is suspended.

DEATHS FROM FREEZING IN PARLOR.

European Ports Blocked by Ice.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The weather continues intensely cold throughout the Continent.

Three unfortunate men have been found frozen to death in the streets of Paris; and three others, who were in the Department of the North, perished from cold.

From Hamburg comes news that the Lower Elbe is frozen over solid.

Fleets of vessels are detained. Some provisioned for short voyages are frozen in and their crews are suffering for want of food.

At the mouth of the river over twenty ships, unable to enter, are driven helpless under a strong northeast wind among the heavy floating ice. Great loss of life and property is feared.

At the North German ports are blocked with ice and navigation is suspended.

DEATHS FROM FREEZING IN PARLOR.

European Ports Blocked by Ice.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The weather continues intensely cold throughout the Continent.

Three unfortunate men have been found frozen to death in the streets of Paris; and three others, who were in the Department of the North, perished from cold.

From Hamburg comes news that the Lower Elbe is frozen over solid.

Fleets of vessels are detained. Some provisioned for short voyages are frozen in and their crews are suffering for want of food.

At the mouth of the river over twenty ships, unable to enter, are driven helpless under a strong northeast wind among the heavy floating ice. Great loss of life and property is feared.

At the North German ports are blocked with ice and navigation is suspended.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE PHILADELPHIA DEMOCRATIC BANQUET.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—Arrangements for the dinner by the Young Men's Democratic Association at the Academy of Music to-morrow evening have been completed. It is said it will be the greatest social and political event that has ever taken place in Pennsylvania. Five hundred and fifty gentlemen will participate. Ex-President Cleveland and party will leave New York in a special car to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, reaching this city about 1.30. When they will be met by the Young Men's Democratic Association, who will be escorted to the rooms of the Young Men's Democratic Association, where an informal reception will be held. The dinner will take place at 7.30 o'clock. The evening will be entertained at breakfast by L. Clark Davis and party. The dinner will be returned to the Young Men's Democratic Association. The Young Men's Democratic Association will be entertained at breakfast by L. Clark Davis and party. The dinner will be returned to the Young Men's Democratic Association.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows:

Dr. Simon, President of the Leipzig Tribunal, is said to have emphatically recommended to the Emperor in January, 1889, the dancer to German prestige if the prosecution of Prof. Geffcken for high treason continued. Dr. Simon protested against the effort, attributed to Prince Bismarck, to influence the public against the Professor. Thereby, the doctor claimed, exercising pressure upon the Supreme Tribunal.

The Public Prosecutor, it will be remembered, on Jan. 7, 1889, served upon Prof. Geffcken in this city an indictment for high treason in connection with the publication of portions of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The indictment, a voluminous document, traced the entire working life of Prof. Geffcken in trying to prove that he had been a persistent enemy of German unity.

WHY BISMARCK LOST FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—The Halleische Zeitung claims that the origin of the dispute between the Emperor and Prince Bismarck is as follows: